HOW PRINCE ARTHUR PASSED YESTERDAY VISIT TO THE NAVY YARD A DISTINGUISHED COMPANY THE PRESIDENT'S STATE DINNER THE BALL TO-NIGHT

Testerday morning Prince Arthur con tented himself with a morning walk, return-ing to the residence of the British Minister about 11 o'clock. After lungh, the carriages were called and the Prince with Mr. and Mrs. Thornton, Colonel Riphinstone, Lieut. Picard, Eosign Fitzroy and Mr. Le Strange ded to the navy yard, arriving the out 2:30 p. m. AT THE HAYT TAND.

The news of the expected visit of the clon of royalty had been noised about the sastern section of the city during the mornfore the arrival of the distinguished party. Two companies of marines, in command of Major George Butler and Lieutenant Porter.

At the residence of Admiral Dahlgren, ommandant of the yard, were Secretary commandant of the yand, were Secretary Robeson, Vice Admiral Porter, Admiral Dabigree, and the following members of the Committee on Naval Admirs of both Houses of Coogressis Senators Cragito, (chairman,) Anthony, Drake, Scott and Osborn; Representatives Scoffeld, Ferry, Stevens, Hale, Archer and Haight. The offiers of the yard, headed by Captain Patter eers of the yard, headed by Captain Patter-son, executive efficer, were drawn up to line before the commandant's residence. As soon as the carriage containing the Prince, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton and Colone! Ephinstone entered the main gateway, the marines presented arms, three rolls of the dram were given, (the Prince bowing mean-while,) and a saint of twenty-one gues while,) and a salute of twenty-one guns were fired. As the boom of the first gun was heard the flag of England was run up on the main staff. When the drums coased

The Frince's carriage drove slowly past and into the court-yearf of the commandant's residence. Mrs. Thorston passed into the house, while the Frince was heartily greeted by Secretary Robson and Admirals Forter and Dahlgren. The Secretary presented the two Committees on Naval Affairs, and then Admiral Dahlgren introduced the officers of the yard individually. The Prince was very warm in his salutations, shaking each get leman by the hand.

After the greetings the distinguished com-pany walked down the yard, Prince Arthur, Sanked on either side by Admirals Porter and Dahlgren, leading the procession, fol-lowed by Secretary Roberon and Minister Thornton, Captain Patterson and Colonel Elphinstone, Captain Davis and Lieutenant Picard, Lientenant Commander Gilliss and Easign Fitzroy, Mr. Le Strange walked with one of the other officers of the rard, A the party, all auxious to eatch a glimpse of His Royal Highness and hear what he had His Royal Highness and hear what he had to say. The first place visited was the copper-colling uill, where the improved machines for making rivets and spikes, the large furnaces and the methods of making sheet copper were all examined with interest by the Prince and his party.

From the rolling uill, the party proceeded to the Dry Dock, where a few moments were spent in looking at the work being done upon the steamer Kannas. The docks were then visited, and a vaw taken of the moni-
